

Abstract

The present claimed invention is a synchronized comparison and present system that presents a similar Web page, when a page in a Web site is presented, in a different site based on a search keyword automatically obtained in the page simultaneously and automatically and also controls a display mode of the similar page to be synchronous with a display mode of a basic Web page.